

Public Transport Accessibility in Lancashire County Council (400m Buffer)

This analysis evaluates the proportion of the population in Lancashire County Council living within 400 metres of an active public transport stop, with a focus on identifying areas where accessibility gaps may exist.

The results show that most urban areas in Lancashire have moderate - good accessibility, with majority of residents within walking distance of a stop in some areas. However, several rural and peripheral areas fall below 25% accessibility, highlighting potential inequalities in transport provision that may particularly affect vulnerable groups such as children and the elderly.
